

The following Queries are submitted to the Consideration of the LIVERYMEN of LONDON.

1. WHETHER a certain Alderman (to gratify his unbounded Vanity) did not solicit the high Office of LORD-MAYOR of this City contrary to the Advice of his best Friends, who at that Time knew the Insufficiency of his Fortune?
2. Whether he did not prostitute the Honour of the City, by applying the Money given to support the Dignity of that high Office to the Payment of some of his old Debts?
3. Whether he did not run in Debt with the various Persons he dealt with, who supplied his House and Table with Necessaries during his Mayoralty?
4. Whether he did not become Bankrupt within a few Days after he was out of his Office?
5. Whether many of his unfortunate Creditors were not greatly distressed on that Occasion, particularly the Family of a Butcher, who, it is said, died of a broken Heart?
6. Whether any one of you would intrust such a Person as an Executor or Guardian to your Orphan Children?
7. Whether the Stock of the Orphans of this City (amounting to about Six Hundred Thousand Pounds) is not kept by the Chamberlain of London, and the whole Business relating to it transacted in his Office?
8. Whether all the City's Cash is not paid into the Chamberlain's Office?
9. Would it not then be more for the Honour and Interest of the Livery of London, to chuse any other Gentleman of irreproachable Character and acknowledged Abilities their Chamberlain, than a Person who has been so deficient in the Management of his own Affairs. I am Yours,

A BROTHER LIVERYMAN.
